ABSTRACT

The present disclosure relates to a system and method for virus checking program binaries. In one arrangement, the system and method pertain to intercepting program instructions, determining if associated instructions contain one or more sets

5   of "signature" bytes identified with a known virus, and releasing the intercepted code to computer hardware only after determining that the intercepted code is clear of a virus signature.